Overview

This presentation will provide an overview of so-called "medical" marijuana in Ohio. Participants will review the basic pharmacology of the two major compounds found in marijuana and understand the effects of marijuana on health. There will be a discussion of federal and Ohio law regarding cannabinoids. The presentation will also cover potentially challenging elements of recommending cannabinoids for medical use.

Learning Objectives

- 1) Review the pharmacology of the two major compounds found in marijuana.
- 2) Describe the main effects of marijuana on health.
- 3) Discuss Federal and Ohio law related to recommending cannabinoids for medical use.

Faculty

Christina Delos Reyes, MD, is medical consultant at the Center for Evidence-Based Practices at Case Western Reserve University and its two Ohio Coordinating Center of Excellence (CCOE) initiatives—the Substance Abuse and Mental Illness (SAMI) CCOE and Supported Employment (SE) CCOE. In this capacity, she provides technical assistance (program consultation, clinical consultation, and training) to service systems and organizations that are implementing evidence-based practices, emerging best practices, and other strategies that improve quality of life and other outcomes for people diagnosed with severe mental illness and substance use disorders. Dr. Delos Reyes earned her medical degree from the Northeastern Ohio Universities College of Medicine (NEOUCOM) in 1996, and she completed her psychiatry residency and Addiction Psychiatry Fellowship at University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center.

Disclosure

Dr. Delos Reyes has reported that she does not have any financial relationships with any commercial interests. Additionally, she will not discuss unapproved or investigational use of any product.
